SOME WAYS OF COOKING RHUBARB THAT ARE "DIFFERENT"

Rhubarb is one of the early spring favorites, and has a multitude of friends among cooks and housewives. It serves many a good purpose. We city dwellers find rhubarb more expensive than in former times, which elevates dishes made from it to the level of high-class cookery, and modern ways of cooking the plant really take from it the acidity which many persons objected to seriously.

Used as a pie filling, rhubarb ranks among the leaders, and it fills the place of apples until the early ones return to the market. But the fillings are not always made in the old-fashioned way, as the following recipe will show.

In running the rhubarb, do not remove the red skin, as it is valuable as a coloring agent in the finished product. If a stainless steel knife is used for cutting the stalks, the hands will not become stained.

Stewed Rhubarb.
Cut the stalks into inch pieces, then cover with boiling water and allow to stand 10 minutes. Drain and add only a cupful of water to a large saucepanful of the rhubarb.

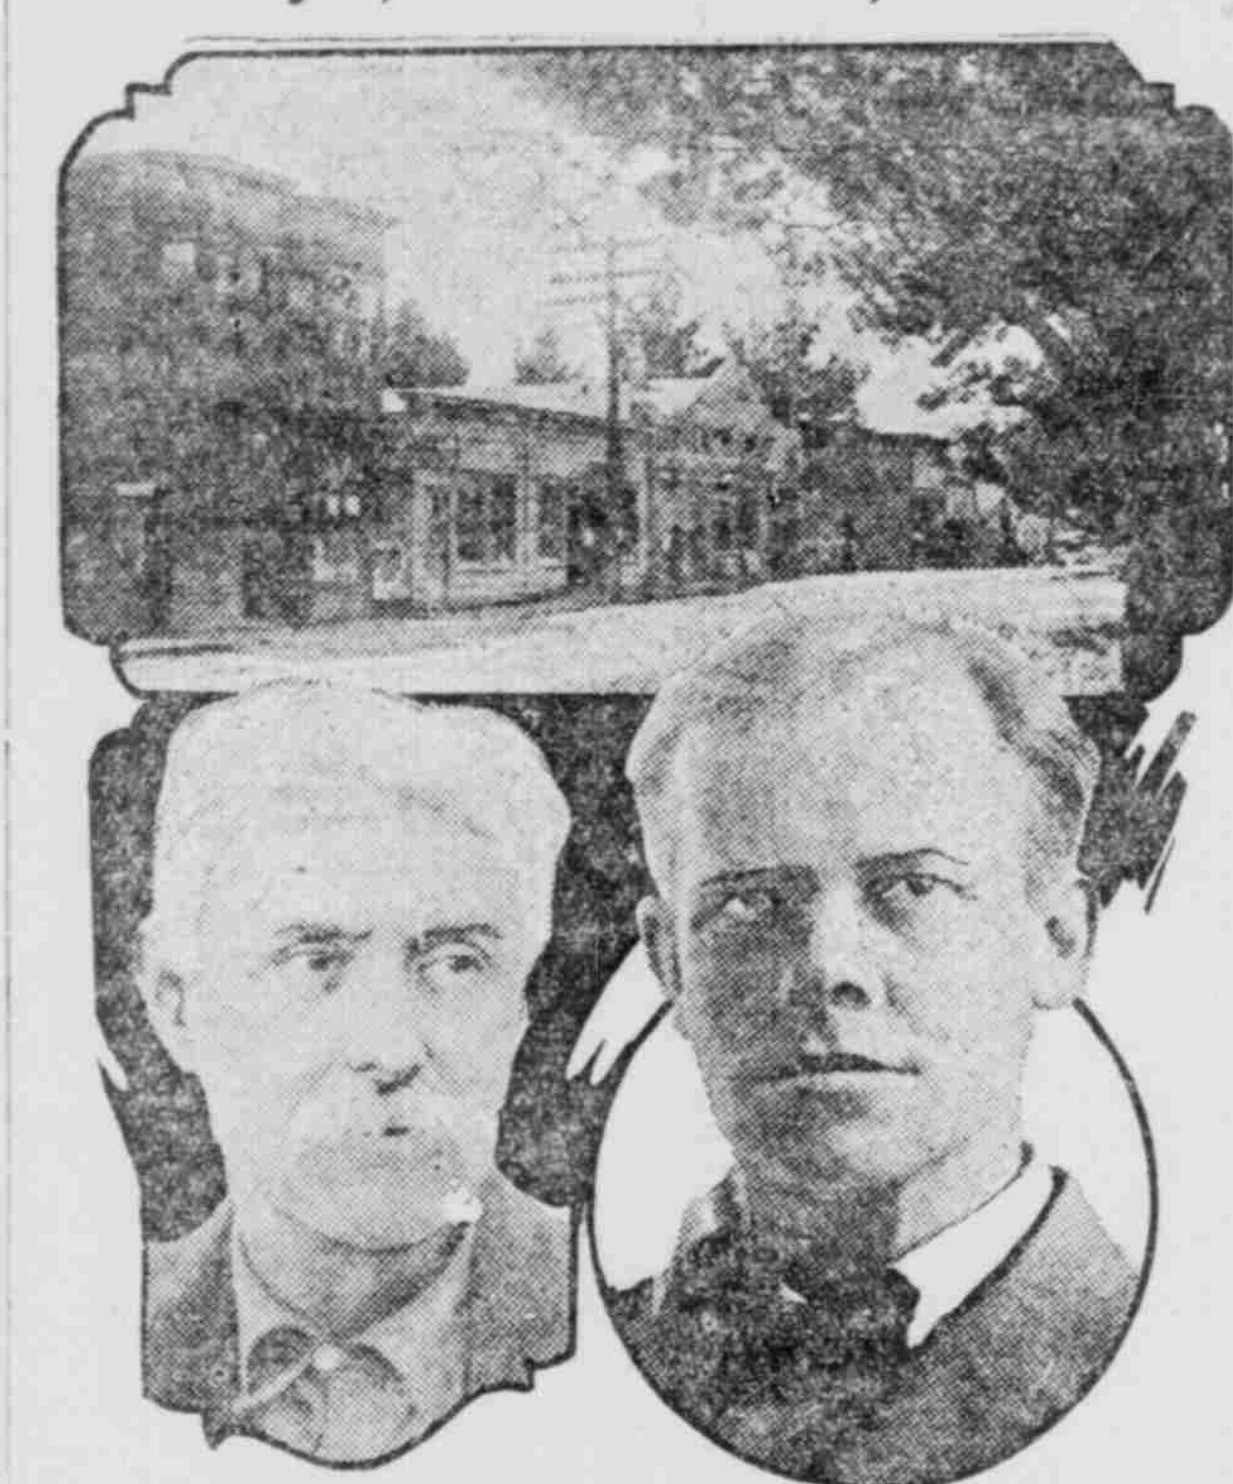

Stew gently for 10 minutes, then add two cupfuls of sugar, and stew until done. If not sweet enough, a little more sugar may be added or a half-cupful of honey will be found a delightful flavoring agent.

Rhubarb Pie.
Cut the stalks the same as for sauce, cover with the boiling water, and let stand for 10 minutes to draw off the acid. Drain and fill the crust-lined pieplate, heaping toward the center, with a cupful of sugar, dot with a little butter, and dust with a little flour, or dissolve a level tablespoonful of cornstarch in a little water and use instead of the flour. Bake as usual.

Rhubarb Jelly.
Prepare the rhubarb as already described for sauce, adding when it is cooked three-quarters of a package of powdered gelatin that has been dissolved in a little water. When all is melted together, strain into enough small jelly moulds to allow one to each portion, and the rest into a single mould. Unmould the small jellies on lettuce leaves and cover with Russian dressing for salad. The large mould is for a dessert made by splitting a sponge cake and filling and covering it with the jelly, like a shortcake, then heating it with whipped cream.

Poet Mayor Bars Boosting City for Sake of Artistic

ARTISTS' COLONY VOTES TO REMAIN IN PRIMITIVE WAY

CARMEL, BY-THE-SEA, Cal., April 21.—Carmel, the "Parnassus of the west," has voted to stay off the map.

Also it has the first "esthetic administration." With the election of a dyed-in-the-wool poet as mayor the voters of this little community, where gather the literati, the artists, musicians and writers of America, have endorsed as strange a platform as ever was placed before a proudful citizenry.

Here were some of the campaign slogans of Perry Newberry, poet, mystery tale, "The Million Dollar Suitcase" and leader of the first "artists' ticket in political history!"

Keep Carmel off the map!
No corner street lamps!
No bourgeois cement sidewalks!
No cement pavements!
No industries!
No looting!
No "Main Street" City Hall!
And a long list of other "noes," including "no auto for the town marshal."

"Main Street" beaten.
Allied against this program was a ticket of "Main Street" business men, headed by H. W. Askew, ambitious tradesman, and sailing under the name of the "progressives."

"Main Street" was snowed under and so, for the first time, the United States is at last to have an "esthetic administration" for with Newberry are elected three "artistic trustees."

"The idea is simply this: we want to keep Carmel's primitive beauty; we don't want Carmel to be like all the other towns; we want it to be different," explains Newberry. "We don't want a chamber of commerce."

with inartistic commercial folders. We don't want a crowd of tourists. To Keep Art Center.
"We want to keep Carmel an art center."

"I told the voters plainly that if they wanted a booming, hustling, wide awake, lively metropolis they better not vote for me."

"The 'Main Street' characteristics are all right for those who want them, but we don't. We believe in progress, but not that kind. I've never yet seen a city hall that wasn't an eyesore to an artist. If you look on the map, you are not likely to find Carmel and that gives it distinction—so, we're going to keep it off the map."

"This old winding country roads are primitively lovely—the fine old paths are picturesque. Why should we trade them for sidewalks and cement pavements?"

VET, 92, GETS MUMPS AND A SET OF TEETH

ELYRIA, O., April 21.—John Brinker, veteran of the Civil War, and 92 years of age, began doctoring himself for the mumps the other day, when his jaw began to swell. The usual remedies, however, brought no relief, and an examination disclosed that the veteran was cutting his third set of teeth.

Brinker has used "store" teeth for 40 years.

"They gave me good service until a few weeks ago," the veteran said. "Then my gums became sore, and the teeth just seemed to skid around, so I took them out and doctored myself for the mumps. But the more I doctored, the more my gums swelled."

When his new teeth all arrive, Brinker says he will have a grand celebration and test out the molars in the most approved way.

"LITTLE FLAPPERS" WRECK YOUTHS' JOY
KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 21.—"Two little flappers made a wreck of us," said James T. Sherman, 18, and Ralph Forbes, 20, of Des Moines, Ia., today as they sat in police headquarters. They were being held for having stolen an expensive motor car in Des Moines which they drove to this city.

The youths said they took the car Tuesday night to give two "live-looking flappers" a ride. After they had secured the car, however, the two girls were nowhere to be found.

Afraid to return the automobile, they determined to get as far away as possible and came to this city.

DUBLIN, April 21.—Irish republican rebels have captured the British wireless station at Bunbeg, in Donegal, in the north of Ireland, according to a report from London today.

SEN. NEW'S FATE EAGERLY WAITED BY U. S. CAPITAL

Administration Watches "Progressive-Old Guard" Contest in Indiana.

BY LAWRENCE MARTIN.

United Press Staff Correspondent.
WASHINGTON, April 21.—Politically, Indiana will become the center of the United States within the next few days. It will be that center until after Tuesday, May 2.

On that day occurs the primary at which will be selected candidates on the republican and democratic tickets for United States senate.

Harding administration officials from the president down, are watching Indiana and listening for tidings with extraordinary interest. This is because Harry S. New, who is seeking renomination, is politically the living personification of the Harding administration. The two men are the closest personal and political friends.

New is therefore peculiarly a "Harding republican" in this instance, and whatever happens to him will be felt in administration circles to be a strong indication of the trend of popular feeling about the Harding administration.

The issue is clearest in Indiana, because New is opposed by Albert J. Beveridge, a totally different type, politically and personally. Beveridge is a moderate progressive, that is, he is not what would be called a radical. Neither is he in New's conservative classification, for New is one of the old guard in the senate.

DIES RATHER THAN ENDANGER CHILDREN

KANSAS CITY, April 21.—Mrs. Catherine Enos, 23, farmer's wife, near Nelson, Mo., allowed herself to burn to death today rather than endanger lives of her two children with her flaming garments.

Her clothing ignited from a stove. Just before she died from fatal burns she told her husband she ran to a room to get a blanket to smother the flames but was afraid to take it from the bed where their two children were sleeping.

ANOTHER HOLDUP.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 21.—The "black and white" bandits, who have committed two bold hold-ups within the last three days, added another to their list today. Two negroes and a white man entered a chain grocery store and robbed Frank Whyte, proprietor, of $2,000. The bandits escaped in an automobile.

The Prince of Wales Ate a Hot Dog!!

It happened one night when he stepped out of Buckingham Palace for a solitary stroll. Along Pall Mall a vendor of Frankforts cried his wares and the Prince bought what we call a "Hot Dog."

On the next day the vendor had tacked on his pushcart the famous English Royal Seal with the words "Purveyor to His Majesty."

The quality of our home made Frankforts would certainly appeal to the royal taste of the democratic American. You should try them.
